

Personal Statement

I consider myself a diligent, grave and rapid learner. Throughout my academic years, I am always keen to participate in activities and programs particularly related to medical science and technology. I am a firm believer in freedom of life. I believe that education always contributes a major role in the success of the individual to become a better human being. I belong to a medical background and want to resume it up to specialization. I am a resident of Saudi Arabia along with my family. My parents always supported me a lot to study at a higher level in the medical field.

When I passed my matriculation, I realized that medical field is the most appropriate field suited to me as I have also several doctors and medical practitioners in my family. All my siblings are well educated and qualified and motivated me a lot to pursue a medical discipline. In Saudi Arabia, I am a 6th year medical student and also needs an internship for the accomplishment of the degree. I also had an elective in “General Surgery Department” for the duration of one month in Saudi Arabia in 2016, when I was in 4th year. In addition, I also had an elective course in “Emergency Medicine Department” in Saudi Arabia in 2017, when I was in 5th year for the same duration of one month.

I believe that choosing a particular domain is a mandatory component of anyone’s life as it will set the career path. I also recognize that western education will be extremely vital for my career as well as personality to know latest cutting-edge medical technology. To fulfill this objective, I have decided to go to London for visiting elective course for a one month. It will not only strengthen my personal skills but also facilitate me to adopt different cultural backgrounds. I have researched a lot for the sake of choosing the destination and found London the right place to gain further exposure in the medical field. Though USA and Canada also have a reputed study atmosphere for international candidates but I prefer London for one month study because of its exceptional quality in the medical field.

It is the 6th year of my study, and consequently, the proposed course of study from London will give me an extra advantage over other students because I will go through from latest medical standards and procedures. As I already accomplished elective courses in “General Surgery” and “Medicine Department”, studying another elective from London will be extremely worth considering for my future career. For the sake of getting an international exposure, I discussed with my family members and teachers who are associated to the medical profession, all of them advised me to go to London for doing a proposed course of study. London colleges and universities are recognized as top rated in the international circuit in the context of medical and technology. Besides, London offers world best amenities and services to both local as well as global student, so it will be a great experience for me.
