

Rejected Dissertation Recovery Blueprint

The Following steps are about the rejected dissertation recovery.

Step-by-Step Rewriting Checklist

1. Analyse Feedback Thoroughly

- Read all supervisor comments carefully.
- Categorise into: critical corrections, minor revisions, and stylistic changes.
- Ask for clarification if something is unclear.

2. Create a Structured Revision Plan

- Break the dissertation into chapters.
- Set realistic deadlines for each section.
- Prioritise major issues before polishing minor ones.

3. Improve Research and Analysis

- Ensure methodology is robust and justified.
- Correct misinterpretations in quantitative or qualitative data.
- Consult reputable methodology resources (e.g., University of Oxford guidelines).

4. Rewrite with Academic Precision

- Strengthen arguments and critical discussion.
- Ensure proper citations and avoid plagiarism.
- Incorporate examples from the literature review to support the analysis.

5. Seek Feedback Before Final Submission

- Request an interim supervisor review if allowed.
- Consider professional dissertation proofreading and editing.
- Implement feedback carefully to prevent repeated rejection.

Sample Chapter Correction Plan

Chapter	Issue	Action Plan	Deadline
---------	-------	-------------	----------

Introduction	Weak research question	Refine focus, add rationale	3 days
Methodology	Insufficient justification	Update methods, explain choices	5 days
Results	Data misinterpretation	Correct calculations, clarify graphs	4 days
Discussion	Limited critical analysis	Compare with the literature, strengthen arguments	5 days
Conclusion	Lack of clarity	Summarize findings and implications	2 days

Common Mistakes to Avoid

- Ignoring or misinterpreting supervisor feedback
- Rushing the rewrite without a structured plan
- Leaving the methodology or data analysis weak
- Weak argumentation or poor referencing
- Skipping professional proofreading or editing

Supervisor Communication Tips

- Keep emails concise and professional
- Highlight completed revisions and remaining updates
- Ask specific questions for clarification
- Share your chapter-wise progress log
- Confirm realistic deadlines for resubmission
